FBI—Gray—CIA

WASHINGTON (AP) — L. Patrick Gray III told Senate investigators the FBI never found links between the Watergate raid, wiretapping and the White House, an official summary of Gray's remarks showed Tuesday.

Gray said a CIA official had him postpone FBI interviews with two Watergate witnesses, and that this caused confusion that was not normal.

But he said that when he told President Nixon about this in a telephone conversation last July 6 he blamed it on "either the carelessness of indifference" by White House aides.

Although he cautioned Nixon that it "could wound the President," he didn't deduce that top White House aides had attempted to enlist the CIA's aid to coverup the scandal.

The CIA's deputy director, Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, testified Monday before the Senate Armed Services Committee in secret that White House aides H.R. Haldeman, John D. Ehrlichman and John W. Dean III tried to engage the CIA in a Watergate coverup, a reliable source said.

This dovetails with Gray's earlier interview with the Senate's Watergate investigating committee. An official summary of Gray's remarks was obtained by The Associated Press

Tuesday.

Gray said Walters told him personally last June 23, six days after the Watergate raid, that the CIA had some interest in two witnesses, Mexican lawyer Manuel Ogarrro Daguerre and Minneapolis attorney Kenneth H. Dahlberg.

These two men furnished a financial link between the wiretapping and the Nixon campaign.

Their names appeared on checks that were given to the Nixon campaign as contributions, and which ended in the Miami bank account of Bernard L. Barker, one of five men caught burglarizing Democratic offices.

Gray said Walters' attempt to postpone the interviews caused confusion because Walters' boss then, CIA Director Richard Helms, had told him earlier there was no CIA involvement in the Watergate case.

When Gray tried to get together with Helms and Walters to straighten the matter out, he said, Ehrlichman called Gray and ordered him to cancel the meeting. This was June 28.

Gray said there was "some discussion as to who was to run the investigation," and that "Ehrlichman conceded that Gray was running it, but the meeting was cancelled anyway."

Rogers—Caracas

CARACAS, Venezuela (AP) — Secretary of State William P. Rogers appealed to Venezuelan leaders Tuesday for joint development with the United States of potentially rich oil reserves.

Stressing long-time links between the two countries, Rogers said development of the vast deposits in the belt along the Orinoco River could double the Western Hemisphere's oil reserves.

Rogers was to fly to Lima Tuesday night for talks with Peru's military government.

Speaking at a luncheon, Rogers said development of the Orinoco zone "will require a massive application of advanced technology not yet in general use and very large infusions of capital, running into many millions of dollars."

Rogers said the United States would welcome development of the Orinoco heavy oils. A key problem is that they are mixed with sand and development may be beyond Venezuela's economic resources.

"Should you wish to enter into a long-term arrangement that would facilitate the mobilization of the necessary capital and technology and establish stable trading arrangements, the United States is prepared to cooperate," Rogers said.

Venezuela already supplies about one-third of U.S. oil imports.

Liddy—Finances

WASHINGTON (AP) — Convicted Watergate conspirator G. Gordon Liddy advised Republican congressmen last year on how to avoid the restrictions of the new 1972 campaign reporting law.

As it turned out, Liddy's advice was wrong.

A seminar on the new law was held Feb. 23, 1972, and, according to invitations that went out to all Republican congressmen, it was jointly sponsored by the Republican Congressional Committee and the House Republican Conference.

The GOP Congressional Committee, however, now disavows all responsibility.

Liddy was present as counsel to the Committee to Re-elect the President.

"The whole thrust of his speech was how to evade the new campaign laws," said one congressional aide who attended the meeting. "He told us to go out and get all the money we could before April 7. He said we wouldn't have to name contributors and, even better, we could go out and buy television and radio time with the money collected before April 7 and it wouldn't count against the law's limitations on media expenses."

Before the law took effect April 7, all campaign contributions could be kept secret, but all contributions received after that date had to be made public.

The law also limited the amount of money that could be spent on a congressional campaign. For an average campaign, the maximum was about $50,000.

Liddy's advice that media time bought before April 7 wouldn't count against that maximum proved erroneous. The Federal Communications Commission later ruled that the maximum applied no matter when the media time was contracted for.

Christopher Likely Prosecutor

CIA Intended Scapegoat

WASHINGTON (AP) — Ten days after the Watergate break-in, John W. Dean III asked the CIA in vain to pay bail or salaries of the men arrested inside Democratic Party headquarters, it was disclosed Tuesday.

The disclosure, by the No. 2 man in the CIA, makes it "very clear to me that there was an attempt to unload major responsibility for the Watergate bugging and coverup on CIA," said Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo.

Symington released a summary of some of the testimony given Monday behind closed doors by Army Lt. Gen. Vernon A. Walters, the deputy CIA director.

It quotes Walters: "He told Mr. Dean that there was no way this could be done ... Gen. Walters stated that he told Mr. Dean that to spend funds in this way would implicate the agency and that he, Gen. Walters, was prepared to resign rather than to do this."

At the same time, it appeared that Warren Christopher, a Los Angeles attorney, is the leading prospect to be named special prosecutor in the Watergate probe.

Christopher, a former deputy attorney general, was thought to be the most likely choice of Atty. Gen-designate Elliot L. Richardson after U.S. District Court Judge Harold R. Tyler Jr. withdrew his name from the list of four finalists.

At the White House, press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler said President Nixon had asked for an investigation of possible White House involvement last August "and was satisfied with what he was told."

But asked who had given Nixon the information, Ziegler replied: "I cannot get into that." He added it got to the President "in various ways."

Last Aug. 29, in a news conference, Nixon said Dean — the presidential lawyer who was fired last month — had "conducted a complete investigation of all leads which might involve any present members of the White House staff or anybody in the government."

Nixon said then "no one in this administration presently employed was involved in this very bizarre incident."

Dean said he never wrote such a report. "On a couple of occasions when I was asked to write some fairy tales, I drafted one which showed I thought they were fairy tales and just had other people speaking for themselves," he told Mary McGrory of the Washington Star-News in an interview Tuesday.

Dean spent three hours at the federal courthouse Tuesday giving a pre-trial statement in the civil suit seeking disclosure of Nixon campaign fund raising before last year's April 7 reporting deadline.

Try To Salvage Good From Skylab Failure

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — Temperatures soared to desert-like levels Tuesday in the Skylab space station already crippled by a serious power shortage.

Space officials are considering a short-duration manned mission to inspect the $294 million orbiting laboratory.

Officials said a long-term manned mission is not likely because of the uncontrolled buildup of temperatures topping 100 degrees within the 118-foot orbiting laboratory.

As an alternative, a source said space engineers are studying the possibility of sending Skylab 1 astronaut Charles Conrad Jr., Joseph Kerwin and Paul Weitz up to look for clues to salvage something from the new $2.6 billion American space project.

He said thinking calls for the astronauts to fly around the space station, taking pictures of a failed solar array, and then possibly to dock for an on-board inspection.

Another possibility, the source said, is for astronauts to envelope the spaceship with a giant sheet of Mylar, an insulating material. This would block heat from the sun and allow the orbiting station to cool off.

If the insulating sheet is used, the source said, it more than likely would be installed by the Skylab 2 crew. The tedious operation would require extensive training and there is time before the Skylab 2 launch in August for such training.

In this event, said the source, the Skylab 1 flight of Conrad, Weitz and Kerwin would probably be limited to an inspection trip lasting only a few days.

Other options are being studied and no decision has been made, an official said.

Conrad, Kerwin and Weitz are tentatively scheduled to be launched at 11:01 a.m. EDT (Turn To Page Twelve)

Arab Countries Stage Show Of Oil Control

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS Four Arab nations stopped pumping oil briefly Tuesday in a gesture of support for the Arab struggle against Israel.

Their slowdown, while only symbolic, underscored the increasing talk among Arab leaders about using their oil riches as a political tool in the Middle East.

Libya suspended pumping for 24 hours, the official Libyan News Agency reported, as "an expression of support to Arab rights in Palestine and rejection of the usurpation of Palestine with imperialist support."

Algeria, Iraq and Kuwait said they suspended pumping for one hour, complying with an agreement by the Federation of Arab Trade Unions in Cairo earlier in the month.

Western oil company officials maintained supplies were not affected by the pumping halt.

"Maybe a couple of guys took a break for an hour or two, but there has been no halt in shipments," said an oil man in Tripoli, the Libyan capital.

Effective or not, the gesture added a note of urgency to the talk in Arab capitals of turning their black gold into a political force against Western support for Israel.

President Anwar Sadat of Egypt repeated his suggestion that Arab nations use their oil to pressure the United States into abandoning Israel.

In a speech Monday night to the People's Assembly, he linked the world energy crisis to the Middle East crisis, telling Egyptians: "These are big battles for which we must plan and coordinate."

Cambodia Frees Vietnamese Held For Political Reasons

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — A group of 121 Vietnamese residents of Cambodia flew home to Saigon on Tuesday, free after spending from six months to five years in Phnom Penh jails as political prisoners.

About 40 were women and 50 were children. Most of the Vietnamese had been arrested and imprisoned following the March 1970 overthrow of Prince Norodom Sihanouk, when anti-Vietnamese passions ran strong and Cambodians feared invasion by North Vietnamese and Viet Cong forces.

They were accused of having aided or collaborated with the enemy, they said, but none had been tried on the charges.

Some had been arrested as recently as six months ago, but one man said he had been jailed in 1968, two years before the anti-Sihanouk coup.

There was no responsible government official available in Phnom Penh to say why the Vietnamese — all small merchants, farmers or factory workers — had spent so much time behind bars or why they had been released.

The ex-prisoners, 71 adults and their children, gathered in the South Vietnamese Embassy in Phnom Penh after their release Monday afternoon. Many were sick and did not know what their ailments were because, they said, they had not received medical attention in prison. Two men said they had been tortured repeatedly.

Gold Price Climbs To Record High; Dollar Hits New Lows

LONDON (AP) — Gold hit record highs in Europe for the second straight day Tuesday and the U.S. dollar touched new lows. But experts said another international monetary crisis appeared unlikely.

Dealers here and on the Continent reported that by late in the day some of the steam had gone out of the feverish trading in dollars and gold since the weekend.

Gold nevertheless closed in London and Zurich, the world's two largest bullion markets, at a record $110.50 an ounce, up $8 for the day. But $5 of that climb came in the first hour alone and the markets appeared relatively steady later on.

In New York, stock prices recovered sharply Tuesday. News of rising gold prices and declining dollar values sent the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials in the first hour of trading to its lowest level this year.

The average was below the 900 mark briefly but closed at 917.44, up 7.75 points, ending a three-day plunge in prices.

In Paris, gold soared to an all-time high of $124.13 an ounce, up a phenomenal $17.93 on the day. Bankers there said buyers were in the market for gold "at any price."

The Paris gold market, however, is a special case, because French government controls limit the import and export of gold. The Paris gold price has little effect on larger centers elsewhere.

Dealers reported a vicious circle on financial markets earlier in the day. As gold rose, (Turn To Page Twelve)

'Language Of Deceit'

We're 'Carefully Taught'—By TV

By the time an American youngster reaches the age of 14, he has watched 20,000 hours of television, has seen approximately 18,000 murders or acts of violence and has watched 350,000 commercials.

"Whether we like it or not, much of this persuasion to which we are subjected is deceitful, if only because it is insidious," says David Burmester, a California high school teacher.

Writing in Media and Methods magazine, a publication covering audiovisual and other modern teaching techniques for secondary schools and teacher education, he states that "audiences of the future must be educated to cope with the language of deceit."

Because the successful TV commercial does more than inform, "it conditions," the matter is of such urgency that courses in persuasion must not be put off until high school but must be launched in the elementary levels, he says.

It is more than just a matter of bringing students face to face with the commercial advertising persuaders of our society, says Burmester. He points out that in the last presidential election, more than half of all promotion budgets were spent on television.

The military, too, habitually indulges in euphemistic phraseology, and did so especially during the Vietnam war, and the current "media-aware national administration," he charges, has been known to dip into the language of deceit on occasion.

Some of the ideas he suggests for such a course include finding ads for the same product in different magazines and studying the change in tone and language in each of the magazines.

"Teaching kids to deal with the language of deceit is really an exercise in becoming a resourceful and critical media consumer while directing students to become the same," he says.

No doubt such courses would be worthwhile, if only by making students more aware of the language we use, and misuse, grammatically and otherwise.

Yet remembering Lincoln's words about fooling all of the people all of the time, it may be wondered if Americans are as malleable or as gullible as some critics fear.

Studies have shown that while advertising is effective in persuading consumers to buy one brand of a given product in preference to another, and is useful in introducing new products, it is questionable whether it can generate a need that is not already present.

An example is seen in the sales of cigarettes, which continue to climb even after their advertising was banned on television. Another is the almost absolute failure of intensive media campaigns to persuade people to use the seat belts in their automobiles.

At least one other study of youngsters found that by the time kids get to be about nine or 10 years old, they have become pretty sophisticated and realistic judges of the stuff that is fed them over television.

The real danger of the "language of deceit" may not be that Americans are being conditioned to believe everything but that they may become so cynical that eventually they will believe nothing.

One-Gun Brennan

There is something more than a bit ludicrous about the spectacle of a Cabinet member toting a gun wherever he goes. Secretary of Labor Peter Brennan should reconsider this folly and give up a habit acquired when, as boss of a tough union, he felt that he had to carry a pistol for protection.

Since this situation first came to light, Brennan has made it even sillier by having himself sworn in as a deputy federal marshal so that he can cross state lines with a pearl-handled revolver tucked away in his belt. This entitles him to make arrests and transport federal prisoners, something he may wish to try if the secretary of labor business doesn't provide enough excitement.

An aide reportedly opined, on this point: "Of course he won't do that, because he's busy in the Labor Department." What troubles us is that Brennan, packing his rod, also must be busy in a lot of other places.

We repeat: Secretary Brennan should reconsider, giving some thought to how it looks for a member of the President's Cabinet to go about armed like a private detective on the prowl.

Books Reveal Dangers Of Official Deception

By ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK
WASHINGTON (UPI) — The irony of the new books "The Politics of Lying" and "Political Prisoners in America" is that their authors are exactly the kind of Establishment men pictured by radicals of the Left and Right as the real powers of American government.

That David Wise and Charles Goodell see themselves in a far different light is revealed in their books—different in content and style but sharing the conviction that official deception and repression are becoming increasingly dangerous.

Wise, who wrote "Lying", is the former Washington bureau chief of the New York Herald Tribune, which was staunchly Republican to the day it died. Goodell, author of "Prisoners", was a conservative Republican House member and a slightly more liberal senator until he was bushwacked by right wingers in New York.

Shake Up Americans

Both books have historical references going back to the earliest days of the nation, but the common message is that since World War II we have been witnessing the rape of truth and the shackling of free expression. These books are intended to shake up Americans who still think the government never tells lies and that any citizen may speak his mind without fear of official retaliation.

They succeed in that: it is easy to see how anyone who has ever uttered a critical remark about those in authority could come down with the paranoid shakes after reading both books.

But if they have any lasting value, the two books should be read as object lessons demonstrating Lord Acton's observation that power corrupts.

What these books tell us is that the worst depredations of citizen rights have been committed by people who really believed they were defending the security of the nation and the stability of society.

Feverish Righteousness

As far back as 1799, when Luther Baldwin of Philadelphia was convicted of sedition for declaring, in his cups, that he did not care if a 16-gun salute to John Adams was fired into the presidential backside, Americans in authority have been clutched with a kind of feverish righteousness that transforms disagreement into conspiracy and irreverence into treason.

These illusions of rectitude have no ideological persuasion—the attorney general in Woodrow Wilson's administration could sweep up thousands of persons accused of "evil thinking," and a White House aide in the Richard Nixon administration could order the burglary of a court defendant's psychiatric records in the name of "national security."

The record seems clear: it is fruitless to expect men who reach positions of power in this or any other political system to respect, let alone defend, the right of dissent.

This is a job the people must do. The Constitution is their protection against official tyranny; the courts are their bulwark against unchecked Presidents and Congresses; the press is their lever to pry open closed government.

People who have grievances, who see wrongs clothed as social tradition or national necessity, must use these tools. And, hardest of all, even those who are satisfied with the way things are must be prepared to defend the rights of those who are not.

Costly, Wasteful

Housing Program Fails Of Its Aim

By RAY CROMLEY
WASHINGTON (NEA)—A recent in-house review of federal housing and urban renewal programs does not present a pretty picture.

The rehabilitation loan program has provided a quarter billion dollars in subsidized 3 per cent, 20-year loans over the past eight years to selected owners and tenants to promote the rehabilitation of property in urban renewal areas.

Investigators uncovered the distressing fact that in some localities, overhead or administrative expenses have accounted for half of the costs of the program.

In a majority of cases, the aid did not go to help the neediest families. Well over half of the subsidized loans have been going to persons with incomes above the median in their areas. Nearly 500 went to those earning more than $20,000.

Though the improvement of substandard housing was a major objective, most of the housing being subsidized already met minimum housing code standards. Families receiving the loans used the funds for additional improvements.

The situation in the 24-year-old $13 billion urban renewal is worse. The studies indicate a substantial part of the federal subsidy has been going to land speculators who have unloaded land at several times its worth. In one eastern city local officials documented 20 instances in which the urban renewal agency purchased land at more than double its appraised value; the price paid exceeded the appraisal by more than 500 per cent in nine instances, by 1,000 per cent in five, by 1,500 per cent in three and by 2,000 per cent in one.

Participating cities must observe 1,800 pages of federal regulations. Local officials must, of necessity, spend much of their time finding ways of staying within or circumventing the rules. In many cases this further distorts the objectives.

Commitments now outstanding in federal low-rent public housing, rent supplement, home ownership assistance and rental housing programs are expected to cost the taxpayer $57 billion to $82 billion in direct subsidy payments over the life of the projects.

Yet the investigators have found these programs provided "a fortunate few with new housing while comparable families pay more for unsubsidized housing that is not new."

The projects have placed some families in homes they can't afford to maintain, have provided inordinate financial gains for intermediaries and have inflated housing costs, in part at least because officials supervising the programs have not properly inspected homes nor given adequate counseling to low-income home buyers.

The federal college housing program, it was found, has been subsidizing the building of costly new college dormitories in areas where students are leaving the dorms for off-campus private housing. Largely, perhaps, as a result of this misplaced aid, defaults jumped from 13 projects in 1971 to 59 in 1972.

The question which Congress must now decide is whether the particular programs listed above are so poorly conceived that new federal programs must be substituted, whether they have failed in such measure because they have been stuck with poor management over the past several administrations (Republican and Democratic) and a managerial clean-up is thus called for, or whether the problems noted above are inherent in any federally managed programs and that many or most of the projects should be turned over to the states, perhaps using shared revenues.

Ann Landers:

Resents Being Called "Mother"

Dear Ann Landers: Our son is 24 years old. He began seeing a divorced woman who is 37, and looks every day of it. I was sure the affair would blow over and said nothing to indicate my disapproval. A few weeks ago they announced their engagement, which was a shock to both my husband and me. This woman is only five years younger than I am, Ann. Need I tell you how I felt when she started to call me "Mother" the day after the engagement was announced?

Last night she called me "Mother" four times during dinner. It ruined my appetite and I got the hiccups during the meal which added to my embarrassment. My husband seemed to think it was funny. I could have killed him.

What should I do about it? Obviously she is doing this to make me feel older and to remind me that soon she will be a member of the family—whether I like it or not. I'd appreciate your advice.—Excedrin Headache

Dear Ex: Get down to basics. The next time she calls you "Mother," ask her to call you by your first name. The doll is going to be around awhile and there's no sense in going through life with hiccups and indigestion.

Dear Ann Landers: I could never ask my mother this question—she'd kill me. But I do need an answer. Please help me. When I was 15 I made a very big mistake. I was lucky. I didn't get pregnant. I am 18 now and going with a wonderful guy who respects me very much. We are talking about getting engaged when I graduate from high school in a few months and I need to know something. Can a fellow tell if a girl is a virgin? I don't want to go into my past history. Will

he know?—No I.D. Please

Dear N: In most instances there is no definite, irrefutable, physical evidence of virginity if he's as wonderful as you say, he won't ask questions.

Dear Ann Landers: I would like to address this letter to "Yes, This Means You." The poor woman sounds so sure of her husband I hate to take the wind out of her sails.

I feel terribly sorry for her, or for ANY wife who is 100 per cent certain her husband will never stray because she's a hot number and their sex life is great. Of course, she may be right, if she's lucky enough to have a mature spouse. But usually the men are not so mature. It's a shock for a middle-aged woman to discover that the old boy is stashing girlie magazines and stag movies and bringing home novelty-store tricks to rev up his sex life. After the shock wears off, she figures that if thousands of people are getting their jollies out of these things that maybe they are normal and she's nuts.

Finally she goes to a psychiatrist (where her husband really ought to be) and learns that she's O.K. but he is stuck back there at the 12-to-14-year-old level. She then has two choices. She can either dump him, or she can be a loving and patient wife and hope her feelings stay alive while he works through his sexual adolescence. She then admits to herself that nobody changes anybody. Everybody has to change himself. And that is the beginning of wisdom.—I'm Talking About Us, Dear

Dear Talking: Truer words were never spoken. I hope the thousands of women who have this problem will clip today's column and read it when the old boy regresses. It might give them hope.

South won the spade lead and saw that his only chance for nine tricks would be to drop the queen of clubs. He played out his ace and king. The queen failed to drop, but South did not groan, moan or stop dead. He continued with a third club without any signs of worry.

West was in with the queen and East had to make a discard. He thought a while and dropped the nine of spades.

We have to give South some credit for putting on the bold front, but he would not have made his contract against an alert East.

Once it hit the table West would have had no problem and would have promptly cashed his four spades.

U. Of I. Coach Will Be Chamber Speaker

University of Illinois head football coach Bob Blackman will be this year's speaker for the 52nd Annual Dinner of the Jacksonville Area Chamber of Commerce.

After 16 brilliant years as head man at Dartmouth College, Blackman moved to Illinois in 1971 where he posted a 5-6 record under rather remarkable circumstances. His Fighting Illini in 1971 lost their first six games and swept their last five—all against Big Ten opponents.

Bob Blackman

Illinois' 5-3 Big Ten finish tied for third with Ohio State and was the best conference mark since 1966 and the most wins in Big Ten play since 1963. The last time Illinois won five games in a row in a season was 1953 and the last time an Illinois team won five Big Ten games in succession was 1946.

For the spectacular comeback, Blackman was one of 17 coaches in the country nominated for "Coach of the Year" honors by the American Football Writers Association.

This year's Chamber of Commerce Annual Dinner will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday evening, May 30th, in the McClelland dining hall on MacMurray College campus.

Reservations and tickets are available at the Chamber office.

Darwin's Homer In 11th Inning Allows Split

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Minnesota's Bobby Darwin hit a tie-breaking homer in the top of the 11th and the Twins went on to score a 6-4 victory and gain a split of their two-night doubleheader with the Texas Rangers Monday.

In the opener, Toby Harrah's two-out two-run homer, his first of the season, lifted the Rangers to a 7-6 victory.

The Twins had done all their scoring in the first five innings, of the first game, getting two runs in the second, third and fifth innings.

Harrah continued his hitting in the second game when his third-inning single scored Jim Mason and Tom Grieve. The Twins came back in their half of the fifth to tie the game on George Mitterwald's two-run homer to left following Danny Thompson's single.

Texas jumped back on top with two runs in the seventh. Minnesota promptly tied it in the eighth. Rod Carew doubled, moved to third on an infield out and scored on Bill Sudakis' passed ball. Jim Holt walked and scored on Steve Braun's double.

Nairobi Drive-In Is Social Center

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — It's Sunday, 5 p.m. Hundreds of sari-clad Asian women are gathered in the open, chatting with each other and their menfolk. Nearby children are at play, chirping at one another in a variety of Indian dialects. Mod-looking teen-agers, sporting the latest fashion, munch on "chevda" (curried peas) and give the eye to members of the opposite sex.

This brown sea of humanity would look more at home in New Delhi, Bombay or Calcutta.

But it is a drive-in in Nairobi, the cosmopolitan metropolis that is the capital of Kenya.

The pressure may be on for noncitizen Asians to leave this East African nation, but nobody watching this all-Asian affair screams "racism" or charges the participants with discrimination.

The occasion, for that indeed is what it is, is the weekly screening of an Asian movie — possibly in Gujarati or Punjabi, probably in Hindustani — which also doubles as a community get-together in the sun.

The visit to the drive-in cinema in Nairobi on Sunday has become a way of life, almost an institution, for the thousands of Asians who live here.

The Asian-owned Belle Vue Drive-In, three miles from the city center and situated off the busy highway to the country's international airport, accommodates 750 autos. Most Sundays hundreds of Asians have to be turned away at the two shows — 7 and 10:15 p.m.

The queues outside the Belle Vue start to build up four hours before the "early" show starts. The ticket counters open soon thereafter — tickets retail for 90 cents for adults and 70 cents for children under 12 — and by 5:15 p.m. the "house full" signs are posted at the main entrance.

And then begins the marathon wait for those within.

Among the amenities is a children's playground. Teen-agers exchange gossip and boys and girls — many high school students using the drive-in for their once-a-week meeting — chat and hold hands under the surveillance, albeit discreet, of orthodox parents nearby. Indian music blares over the PA $50 bond.

system. The cinema's cafe, also Asian-run, offering soft drinks and fish and chips, does a roaring trade. There are also Indian delicacies available; "pan" (betel-nut) is always in demand.

Many patrons, with a mind to economy, have brought homemade sweets and an assortment of foods with them.

The Asians, forming a six-deep wide arc in front of the giant screen, are a varied lot indeed.

Brown-skinned Gujarati dukawallahs (shopkeepers) and fair-complexioned Ismaili businessmen are side by side. There are burly, turbaned Sikhs, probably contractors or teachers, and Kutchi masons and plumbers. There are corporate executives and supermarket store owners in their $10,000 limousines and $200-a-month salesmen and clerks. All have loaded wives, children, in-laws and friends into the family car and are now waiting for the lights to dim and the show to start.

The film ends shortly after 9:45 p.m. — and the site is barely emptied when the "late" show patrons fill it up again.

Police Arrest City Man On Two Charges

City police arrested a Jacksonville man early Tuesday morning and charged him with resisting peace officers and disorderly conduct.

Charged was Charles R. Windell, 32, of 1124 W. Walnut. Police conducted a stake-out between 10:47 p.m. Monday and 12:55 a.m. Tuesday on Row 5 of the Gold Coast Trailer Court, 1124 W. Walnut.

Windell was apprehended after a foot chase through the trailer court after officers reportedly observed him looking into a trailer window.

Windell was kept overnight in the city jail and transferred to the county jail Tuesday morning. He was released on $50 bond.

Report Huge U.S. Deficit In Balance Of Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — The rush of speculators' dollars out of the country was largely responsible for the huge deficit in the country's balance of payments in the first three months of 1973, the Commerce Department reported Tuesday.

The department said the amount of funds flowing out of the country exceeded the amount flowing in by $10.2 billion during the first quarter.

That marked an increase of $8.6 billion over the fourth quarter last year and nearly equal to the over-all 1972 deficit of $10.9 billion.

The huge jump in the outflow of funds came despite a considerable improvement in the country's trade balance during the period.

The Commerce Department said much of the balance-of-payments deficit was due to money flowing out of the country as investors anticipated profits from changes in value of world currencies and from higher interest rates abroad.

It said there was an outflow of $3.4 billion in liquid private capital during the period, compared with an inflow of $2.5 billion the fourth quarter last year, an unfavorable shift of $5.9 billion. Liquid capital is assets easily convertible into cash.

The flow of speculative funds occurred during two periods in the quarter, prior to the Feb. 12 devaluation of the U.S. dollar and then again before a new system of exchange rates that was worked out in mid-March.

The Commerce Department noted that although the world monetary situation stabilized in March, funds did not go back into the United States on a large scale because interest rates remained lower than abroad.

International financiers tend to borrow where interest rates are lowest and invest where they are highest.

There are indications of new instability in world money markets as the price of gold has skyrocketed to above $100 per ounce, while the value of the dollar against other currencies has fallen.

One of the complaints of other governments has been that the outflow of U.S. dollars into the world has been too great to be absorbed in normal channels.

Therefore the surplus of U.S. dollars permits speculators to attack the values of other currencies in search of quick profits.

The U.S. Treasury Department has launched a study into the role of United States banks in the February-March periods of speculation.

Harold Lloyd Mansion To Be Open To Public

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — Beginning May 25, the public will be able to see a $2 million relic of the elegant era when movie stars lived like movie stars.

The grandest of all the Hollywood mansions — Harold Lloyd's — is now undergoing preview tours and next month will be open to the general public via group visits by bus.

The visitors will see luxury that none of today's film personalities can afford. For instance:

A Versailles-like formal garden with doll houses that are completely livable.

A huge living room with built-in pipe organ.

Two 1924 Rolls-Royces and a 1935 Packard.

A hanging staircase of oak, reputedly the only one in Southern California.

Centuries-old rugs and tapestries, including a Flemish wall-hanging that was the gift of Mary Pickford — "because I can't stand that bare wall."

The most popular attraction is likely to be the Lloyd Christmas tree. The comedian spent weeks hanging the huge indoor tree with hundreds of hand-crafted ornaments gathered from around the world.

The shy, bespectacled Lloyd died of cancer two years ago, a month short of his 78th birthday. His will left the house and 18 acres to a nonprofit foundation with the design that the place be opened to the public.

That wasn't easy. The Lloyd estate is nestled in some of America's highest-priced residential property, and some of the neighbors were understandably concerned about having a tourist attraction next door.

"Only about 10 of the neighbors complained," reported Suzanne Lloyd Guasti, granddaughter of Lloyd and one of the five foundation trustees. "Sixty-five of the neighbors okayed the plan to have public tours. But because of the objections, we had to limit the tours to visitors who will be brought in by Gray Line buses."

Lloyd built the estate at the height of his silent-screen fame, starting in August 1926 and finishing three years and $2 million later. Not even the legendary Pickfair of Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks could match its grandeur. The grounds included a nine-hole golf course.

Skylab Heating Problem Like Broken Window

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — If you've ever broken the outer pane of a storm window during the winter, you can understand the problem affecting Skylab 1. But instead of letting warmth out, the loss of Skylab's outer "pane" is letting heat in.

About 63 seconds after a Saturn 5 rocket was launched Monday, a micrometeorite shield was torn away.

The shield was designed to reduce the slim possibility that the space station workshop would suffer a pinhole puncture from streaking space dust.

But it also served a second function of helping to keep Skylab cool. The shield was to have deployed with a seven-inch space between it and the space station's outer hull and would have operated something like the outer pane of a storm window.

Tuesday morning, National Aeronautics and Space Administration engineers said radio data indicated temperatures inside the as-yet unmanned Skylab had climbed to 100 degrees.

Skylab also lost about half of its electrical generating power because two solar energy panels malfunctioned, but NASA officials say they still hope to launch astronauts Charles Conrad Jr., Paul J. Weitz, and Dr. Joseph P. Kerwin on Sunday to board the space station.

Bob Raffaelli, chief of the Skylab program's space vehicle office, said, "Last night, we were getting outer skin temperatures readings of about 140 degrees. Inside, it's reading about 100 degrees."

"The normal planned temperature of the space station is 70 degrees, but we can fly at 90 degrees," he said. "The atmosphere inside is probably a bit dry right now, but when the astronauts go in they'll raise the humidity through body fluid losses from breathing and perspiring."

Even if the astronauts must work in a temperature around 90 degrees, engineers say they will be surrounded by the kind of "dry heat" Easterners often talk about when describing how surprised they were to find themselves comfortable in the blazing sun of Phoenix, Ariz.

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Harmless Home Remedy
More on Treating Warts

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.
Dear Dr. Lamb—I was much interested in your answer to the matter about warts removal and decided to write about my experience; perhaps it could help someone else this time.

Back in 1930 my small daughter had a wart come under her fingernail and it pushed the nail up and was very painful, as you might know. I wrote to a doctor's column at the time and asked what I could do as I had done everything our local doctor had told me.

The answer was to get a small bottle of "flexible collodion," cover the wart and keep it covered with this for 10 days or longer. It dries on and acts like a second skin. Then you should be able to lift the wart out with tweezers or your fingers.

It worked like magic and came out, even the core of the ugly thing. Through the years, I am 69, I have told countless people who removed their own warts, several different kinds, and it worked every time. Sometimes I can't buy the collodion and get "New Skin" which has it for the base but it is not as good. Please tell your readers about this. It's cheap, easy, painless, and works every time and is harmless, too. I believe some corn remedies have collodion for a base, too.

I have removed seed warts that were as long as my little fingernail and left a deep conical hole which soon healed with no further trouble.

Thank you for your interesting column; I never miss it. Dear Reader—Thank you for your suggestion. It sounds simple enough and harmless. I'm including your letter and the one below to give all the readers other suggestions on treating warts.

Dear Dr. Lamb—You answered a correspondent's query about plantar warts, naming several means of treatment. However, you did not mention the best treatment of all.

I spent 23 years, before my retirement, in the Low Temperature Laboratory of the University of California where we liquefied air, fractionating it into liquid oxygen and liquid nitrogen, also liquefying hydrogen and helium. Many times we had occasion to treat plantar warts with liquid nitrogen. By using a small cotton swab, dipping it in liquid nitrogen, and applying it to a wart until it turned white (frozen) the wart was cured. It was practically painless the skin was not broken to admit infection and all that was necessary, besides the freezing of it, was to cover the wart with a band aid and forget it for a week or so and it would come off like a scab.

The liquid nitrogen freezing destroys the cells and acts much like a third degree burn, but without the toxic reactions of a burn. I have never failed to cure the wart and there has never been any infection. It is much better than acids, an electric needle, surgery, tape, or any other method with which I am familiar. The only disadvantage is that there are relatively few places it can be obtained, except in larger cities. A dermatologist friend said it was quite the best and safest method to treat skin cancers also.

The ideal one-phone home.

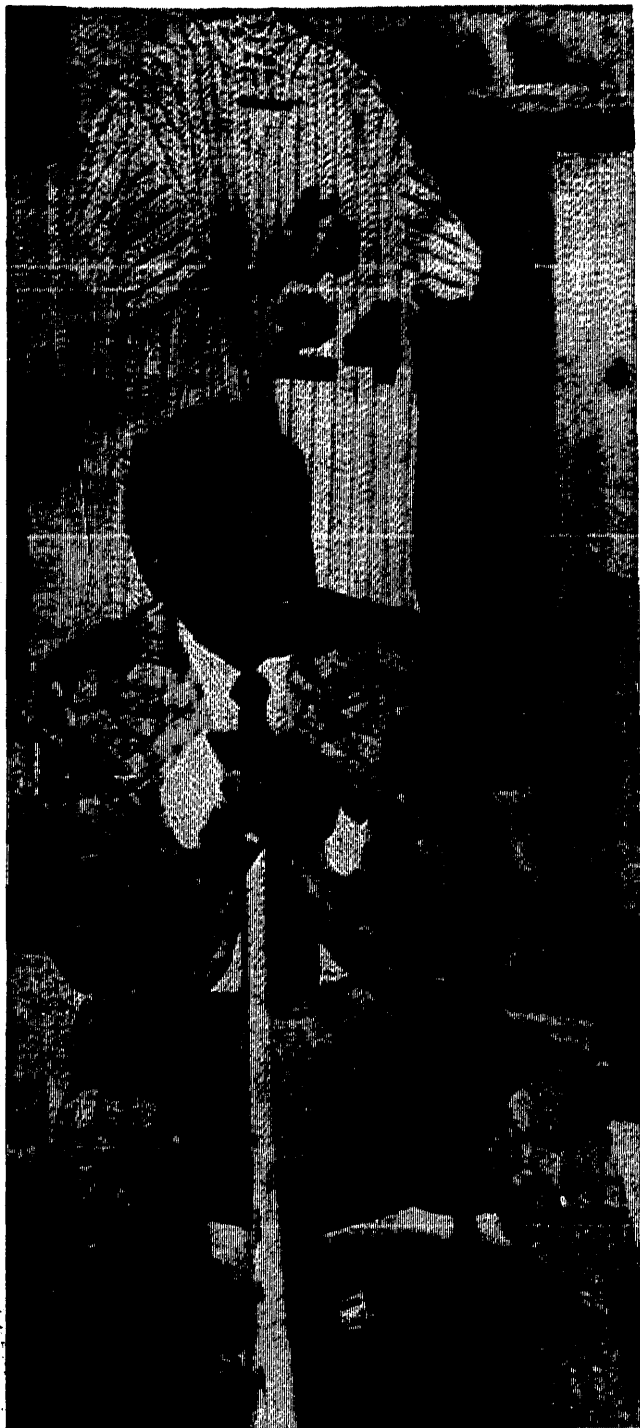

It's got just one room.
So, naturally it needs just one phone.
Is that how you live?
The answer is probably no and yes.
No. You don't live in one room.
Yes. You probably live with one phone.
That means you're running to answer a lot of calls.
And missing many.
And also missing the privacy a bedroom or den extension gives (there's little private conversation possible in the one-phone home).

Why put up with these inconveniences any longer?
Consider how much more you get with an extension.
Twice the convenience.
But not twice the cost. (An extension costs only a few cents a more.)

NEW YORK: Willie Mays, 42-year-old N.Y. Mets centerfielder, denies to newsmen Tuesday that he is being placed on the disabled list meant his definite retirement. The Hall of Fame certainty, suffering shoulder miseries, said, "If I can play again, I will." (UPI Telephoto)

Mays Says He's Not Through Yet

NEW YORK (AP) — Willie Mays said Tuesday, "When I get ready to retire the world will know about it the same time I do — I won't hide anything. I'll announce it immediately."

It won't be today, it won't be tomorrow, the 42-year-old New York Mets' all-time great insisted. It won't be until after he has completed 15 days on the disabled list because of a painful right shoulder.

"When I come back, if I find I can't swing, can't throw and can't run, then I'll throw in the towel," he added. "Not before. First, I must be sure I can no longer be of any value to the team."

Mays was disturbed by newspaper reports that he was on the verge of retirement and that he planned to leave baseball completely to oversee his successful real estate interests on the Pacific Coast.

"In the first place I'm not sure I could retire right this minute if I wanted to," he said. "I am still a player and on the disabled list."

The 15-day period, which went into effect Sunday, will end May 27.

The shoulder injury, Willie said, is not a new one. The joint first started hurting three years ago when he was with San Francisco.

"Baseball means a great deal to me. I still have a 10-year contract with the Mets, so I'm not thinking yet about leaving baseball."

"New York is a big town. They're not going to be satisfied with me playing on my record. I don't intend to embarrass myself or the team."

He added, however, that this would be his last season as a player.

"It's tough to keep getting up and down. There is pain and ache. When you ache, it's not as much fun."

Mays' comments were made when he dropped by Shea Stadium to pick up some mail. He drove up in a pink Imperial with California license plates which read "Say Hey."

"It's a form of tendonitis — a pull," he explained.

Mays was signed by the old New York Giants in 1951, became a part of the franchise move to San Francisco in 1958 and returned to New York as a Met in a deal a year ago. He is off to a disappointing start this year: a batting average of .108 with only four hits in four weeks of action.

Mays is a proud man. He is intimated he would not be content to stay around and draw his $165,000 a year salary just for sentiment's sake.

"I have achieved a lot in 20 years of baseball," he said. "I don't want people sympathizing with me. I'll stay in the lineup only if I can help the club either hitting or on defense."

Bases-Full Walk Lets Cards Win

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Philadelphia's Darrell Brandon issued a bases-loaded, tie-breaking walk to Jose Cruz that ignited a four-run eighth inning which carried the St. Louis Cardinals to an 8-4 victory over the Phillies Tuesday.

Mike Tyson singled to start the inning, pitcher Rick Wise, 4-2, was safe when Brandon, 0-1, threw his bunt to second too late. Then Lou Brock beat out a bunt before Cruz drew a walk.

Joe Torre followed with a two-run single and Cruz scored on Ted Simmons' single before Jim Lonborg came in to quell the uprising.

Torre and Simmons singled to drive in first-inning runs but the Phils tied it in the second on Mike Schmidt's two-run homer.

Brock singled, stole second, continued to third on a wild throw and scored on a wild pitch in the Cards' second but Philadelphia tied it in the third on Bob Boone's RBI double and went ahead in the sixth when Tommy Hutton singled and came around on a grounder and two wild pitches.

The Cards tied it in the seventh.

Winchester Gains 15-5 District Win

Winchester pounded Franklin pitching for ten hits, and was aided by nine Franklin errors in taking a 15-5 win over the Flashes in District action at the Pony-Colt Park Tuesday afternoon.

Winchester will tangle with JHS, which thrumped Routt 10-0 Monday, in the championship today at 6:30.

The Wildcats, trailing 3-2 after one inning caught fire to get three runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and four more in the sixth to get the ten run lead that stopped the game after six innings.

Joe Nash went the distance for Winchester, scattering five hits in the win. He helped his cause by scoring two runs.

Denny Doerfler hammered a two-run single and Bill Turner later scored on a passed ball to Franklin off to an early 3-2 lead after one frame.

From then on it was all Winchester as the Wildcats pounded out five doubles enroute to the win. Jim Kirkpatrick crossed the plate four times, and went two for four with the bat.

Second-sacker Gourley went two for five at the plate and drilled a double for the winners. Station was the hitting leader as he smacked two doubles in four trips, and scored three runs.

Pitcher Carter was the main cog in the Franklin offense as he went two for three, drilled a homer in third and scored two runs.

JHS Takes Triangular In Finale

Team depth was the difference as Jacksonville High closed out its regular season track season with a triangular victory on the Crimson cinders Tuesday afternoon.

JHS piled up 104 points to 65 by North Greene and 16 by ISD, which brought only eight runners. Mason City was scheduled to compete but had transportation problems.

Bill Versen took the shot put and discus and Cliff White to long jump and triple jump for Jacksonville, while Roger Copley captured the 100 and 220, both in good times, for North Greene.

In one of the feature events between two of the area's top distance performers, JHS' Ed Flynn nipped North Greene's Mike Bettis, with both times moving to the top of the list among area bests.

ISD's Fred Wilson turned in a fine 52:47 440 to lead ISD.

The Crimsons will take a squad of 20 to the Lincoln District Friday, with the preliminaries starting at 2:30 and the finals at 6:00. JHS is the co-defending champion of the District, tying Southeast last season. JHS will have Ron Fairfield returning for action after a two-week layoff.

Competing for the final time on the JHS field Tuesday were seniors John Buren, Ed Flynn, David Frank, Brett Gardner, Gerry Gotschall, Alan Hindler, John Jameson, Dean Russell, Cliff White, Mike Lovekamp and Gary Becker.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — California fireballer Nolan Ryan pitched the first no-hitter of his career Tuesday night, striking out 12 Kansas City batters, leading the Angels to a 3-0 victory over the Royals.

The 26-year-old right-hander had toyed with the feat numerous times by pitching a pair of one-hitters and four two-hitters in his seven-year major league career.

It was also the second no-hitter of the season and the second in the American League. Kansas City's Steve Busby did it April 27, beating the Detroit Tigers 3-0.

In the third inning, the Royals said they were playing the game under protest. Kansas City Manager Jack McKeon contended Ryan was not keeping his right foot on the pitching rubber as he made his delivery.

The 12 strikeouts by Ryan brought to 35 the number of times he has struck out 10 or more batters in a game. He led the majors in strikeouts last season with 329, the fourth-best ever.

Ryan, pitching before a surprisingly quiet crowd of 12,205 Kansas City fans — rooting neither for nor against him, it appeared — preserved the no-hitter in the ninth as Fred Patek fouled out to first, Steve Hovley struck out swinging on a 2-2 pitch and Amos Otis filed deep to Ken Berry in right field.

He had little trouble raising his record to 5-2 after the Angels gave him a pair of runs in the first inning.

Vada Pinson singled off Bruce Dal Canton, 2-1, and moved to third on a sacrifice and a fly ball. After Frank Robinson walked, Bob Oliver and Alan Gallagher drilled successive run-scoring singles to right.

Oliver made it 3-0 in the sixth with a homer. The Angels knocked out Dal Canton later in the inning when Gallagher and Rudy Meoli singled. Gene Garber came in and got Jeff Torborg on a grounder for the final out of the inning.

The Royals never seriously threatened to break up the no-hitter until the eighth inning when Gail Hopkins, pinch-hitting for catcher Carl Taylor, punched the ball into short center field. But Meoli raced out from his shortstop position and caught the ball easily.

In all, the Royals managed only three baserunners, all on walks. Steve Hovley got on in the first and made it to second with a stolen base. But Ryan struck out the side — Patek, Otis and John Mayberry.

Taylor walked with one out in the third, but Ryan fanned Patek, then got Hovley on an easy grounder back to the mound. Paul Schaal walked with two out in the eighth, just before Meoli made his big catch on Hopkins.

Winchester will tangle with JHS, which thrumped Routt 10-0 Monday, in the championship today at 6:30.

The Wildcats, trailing 3-2 after one inning caught fire to get three runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth and four more in the sixth to get the ten run lead that stopped the game after six innings.

Joe Nash went the distance for Winchester, scattering five hits in the win. He helped his cause by scoring two runs.

Denny Doerfler hammered a two-run single and Bill Turner later scored on a passed ball to Franklin off to an early 3-2 lead after one frame.

From then on it was all Winchester as the Wildcats pounded out five doubles enroute to the win. Jim Kirkpatrick crossed the plate four times, and went two for four with the bat.

Second-sacker Gourley went two for five at the plate and drilled a double for the winners. Station was the hitting leader as he smacked two doubles in four trips, and scored three runs.

Pitcher Carter was the main cog in the Franklin offense as he went two for three, drilled a homer in third and scored two runs.

Team depth was the difference as Jacksonville High closed out its regular season track season with a triangular victory on the Crimson cinders Tuesday afternoon.

JHS piled up 104 points to 65 by North Greene and 16 by ISD, which brought only eight runners. Mason City was scheduled to compete but had transportation problems.

Bill Versen took the shot put and discus and Cliff White to long jump and triple jump for Jacksonville, while Roger Copley captured the 100 and 220, both in good times, for North Greene.

In one of the feature events between two of the area's top distance performers, JHS' Ed Flynn nipped North Greene's Mike Bettis, with both times moving to the top of the list among area bests.

ISD's Fred Wilson turned in a fine 52:47 440 to lead ISD.

The Crimsons will take a squad of 20 to the Lincoln District Friday, with the preliminaries starting at 2:30 and the finals at 6:00. JHS is the co-defending champion of the District, tying Southeast last season. JHS will have Ron Fairfield returning for action after a two-week layoff.

Competing for the final time on the JHS field Tuesday were seniors John Buren, Ed Flynn, David Frank, Brett Gardner, Gerry Gotschall, Alan Hindler, John Jameson, Dean Russell, Cliff White, Mike Lovekamp and Gary Becker.

Williams, Beckert Spark 4-3 Victory

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Williams hit a two-run homer and Glenn Beckert turned in a clutch ninth-inning fielding gem Tuesday as the Chicago Cubs handed New York's Jerry Koosman his first loss of the season, beating the Mets 4-3 Tuesday.

Burt Hooton, 5-2, had a three-hitter going when Cleon Jones and Rusty Staub opened the ninth with singles, putting runners on first and third.

Jack Aker came in and Ed Kranepool greeted him with a run-scoring single. And after Jim Gosger grounded into a forceout at third, Williams dropped Duffy Dyer's fly ball to left, loading the bases.

Bud Harrelson then grounded a ball up the middle but second baseman Beckert stabbed it, wheeled and threw home to force Kranepool by a step, saving the tying run.

John Milner then grounded out, enabling Chicago to win its seventh straight game and widen its lead in the National League East to three games over the Mets.

The Cubs jumped on Koosman, 5-1, for a pair of runs in the first inning when Rick Monday singled and Williams socked his fourth homer of the season. They made it 4-0 in the fourth as Ron Santo doubled and Jim Hickman singled for one run, then shortstop Bud Harrelson threw Hooton's two-out grounder into the Mets' dugout, permitting Hickman to score.

New York got its first two runs in the sixth inning as Wayne Garrett homered, Jones walked and Staub doubled.

The Mets threw a king-sized scare into the Cubs in the ninth inning. Garrett and Jones both singled to open the ninth and Jack Aker replaced Hooton. Ed Kranepool singled home a run before Jim Gosger bunted and forced Staub at third.

Duffy Dyer then lifted a fly ball to left and Williams dropped it for an error. Harrelson then hit a ground ball to Beckert who made a great play to force Kranepool at home. Pinch batter John Milner then grounded to Beckert to end the game.

Williams' homer was his first at home this season and the 360th of his career.

Until the Mets struck for two runs in the sixth, the only hit off Hooton was one out single in the third inning by Koosman. Hooton then retired 10 batters in succession before yielding the homer to Garrett.

The Cubs' two runs in the sixth were somewhat fluky.

With one out, Santo checked his swing but the ball hit his bat and dropped down the rightfield line for a double.

Hickman followed with a single and took second as Randy Hundley grounded out. Don Kessinger was walked intentionally. Hooton then hit a bouncer to Harrelson whose throw went into the New York dugout as Hickman scored and the runners advanced to second and third. Monday fanned to end the inning.

Hooton, who now has an 18-16 record in the major leagues, holds a 6-3 career mark over the Mets whom he has defeated twice this season. It was also the Cubs fourth victory in five games against the Mets this season.

The Cubs will shoot for their eighth straight Wednesday when they open a two-game set against the St. Louis Cardinals with Rick Reuschel, 3-2, going against St. Louis' Alan Foster, 1-3.

Strieker's Homer Gains Clan Split

Ron Strieker couldn't have broken out of a slump at a better time as he hammered a two-out, two-run homer in the bottom of the seventh inning to give MacMurray a come-from-behind 4-2 win and earn a split with Western Illinois University, Tuesday afternoon. In the opener the Leathernecks bounced around four Mac pitchers for nine runs in the seventh frame to claim a decisive 14-1 win.

The split keeps the Mac hopes alive for a berth in the NCAA Midwest regional at Evansville, May 24-26. The Highlanders should know for sure today, whether or not they'll be invited.

In the second game MacMurray drew first blood with a run in the second inning, before WIU took the lead with a run apiece in the sixth and seventh.

In the bottom of the last frame, Larry Sample opened by flying out to right. Dain Meyer then doubled, followed by Doug Damon fanning. Rick Pretz then walked and Strieker broke out of his 0-17 slump by drilling a 2-2 pitch over the fence for a homer.

Jeff Kinneman went the distance for Mac, scattering five hits in running his record to 7-1.

In the opener, Vogel held MacMurray to just three hits in the 14-1 trounce. He had plenty of backup as Dennis Mantick went two for three with three runs scored, Randy Swanson was two for three with two runs scored and Jerry Grybash went two for three, scoring a run.

The Leathernecks, now 21-17, got a run in the first on some early Mac errors, four more in the third, before breaking loose for nine in the last inning.

Indy Not Always The Glamour Show

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — The Indianapolis 500-mile auto race will run the 57th time May 28 with another colorful show drawing more than 250,000 persons and heard and seen by millions more around the world.

But it hasn't always been so. In 1945, when Anton "Tony" Hulman of Terre Haute, Ind., bought the Indianapolis Speedway it was in disrepair. Interest in the Memorial Day classic had diminished after the track was closed four years during World War II.

The Speedway, which was built in 1909 as a proving ground for automobiles, is now known in some racing circles as "the house that Tony rebuilt."

The 2½-mile asphalt track is the focal point of the Speedway on the city's far west side, but it isn't the only attraction of the 539-acre property.

Hulman has replaced the ancient grandstand that nearly circled the track with steel and concrete grandstands. There is now an estimated seating capacity of 235,000 and room for an additional 100,000 persons in the track infield.

Hulman has supervised construction of a more-than-100-room motel, a 27-hole golf course with nine holes in the infield and an office-museum building as well as press and hospitality quarters.

Speedway officials never announced attendance figures, but an estimated 60,000 persons watched the 500 in 1946 and prize money totaled $75,000 after a prewar high of $96,250.

Hulman, whose great wealth comes from varied business and real estate interests, has made the Indy race the richest in the world of auto racing. For the third straight year prize money will total more than $1 million.

His newest improvement at the Speedway is an addition to the motel to house VIP suites which rent for $10,000 a year for the third-floor. There are six suites on each floor. The rooms, which overlook the track, were all rented long before the addition was completed, most of them by large companies involved in racing.

For race day, tickets for reserved seats sell for from $10 to $40, and it costs $5 a person to watch the race from the infield in the midst of the world's largest picnics.

Gasoline Alley, the strip of concrete that connects the garage area with the pits, provides one of the few places in major sports where fans can mingle with their heroes. In fact, drivers, owners and mechanics often have to push their way through the crowd, signing autographs and talking with excited people.

The museum of 500 and Speedway relics is free and open year-round. There is even the opportunity to ride around the track in a Speedway bus for 50 cents, except in May.

But it's the race cars, the speeds and personalities that draw most people here. Racing has changed tremendously since the first Indy 500 in 1911.

Ray Harroun won the first race in a Marmon Wasp at an average speed of 74.59 miles an hour.

Mark Donahue, last year's winner, averaged a record 162.962 m.p.h. in a winged McLaren-Offenhauser.

Milwaukee Making Believers Of Some

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Dave May, an outfielder on Baltimore's 1969 American League championship team, knows a winner when he sees one.

And May insists the Milwaukee Brewers, relegated by almost everyone to another last-place finish, are in the scrambled AL East pennant race to stay regardless of what Billy Martin says.

"If they (the Brewers) can win with this club, I'm a Chinese aviator," Martin snapped last Saturday after the Brewers had beaten his Detroit Tigers to surge back into first place, a position they had first attained two weeks ago.

May, however, answered Martin the next day by belting two home runs as Milwaukee whipped Detroit again. The homers gave him nine for the season, matching his total for all last year.

"I definitely feel we've got a shot at it," May said meaning the pennant. "People say it's a dream that's going to end, but I don't think it's a dream." "We haven't really started hitting for average yet," he said.

"When we do, we can make a run at it. We've got some power, even though some managers don't think so. One manager (Martin) in particular."

The Brewers have been joined in the pennant fight by Cleveland, the division's other distant also-ran of last year.

"I think us and Cleveland both helped ourselves with trades," he said. "We're both young, maturing ball clubs, and some other clubs are getting older. One club, Detroit, is definitely getting older."

"It's just one of those years where everybody has come of age," he said. "We're a hungry club, tired of going home in October with no extra money. We don't have that one guy that leads, like Frank Robinson, but we all believe in ourselves."

"This year, everybody on our club is pulling for one another," May said. "There's no dissension, and last year I'd have to say we had a little of that."

May said the Brewers' new, assertive confidence has increased with success, but was originated by Manager Del Crandall in spring training.

"Del and the coaches pounded a winning attitude into our heads all during spring training, and as the spring got along everybody felt we could have a good club," he said. "Baltimore was like that, too. We won our division, but the next spring it was starting all over, with Manager Earl Weaver pounding winning attitude into our heads."

Big Ten Considers Double Cage Slate

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn. (AP) —

The Big Ten opened its spring meetings Tuesday with athletic directors discussing several proposals including a double round basketball schedule.

Commissioner Wayne Duke said no decisions were reached in the opening of the four-day meetings of directors and faculty representatives.

Duke said football and basketball television policies, the Rose Bowl and problems in scheduling were among other items discussed by the athletic directors.

The major issue before the spring meetings is final action by faculty representatives on a red-shirting rule that would permit football players to complete football competition within a five-year period. The current rule limits players to four years.

Duke said the proposed double round robin basketball schedule could present such problems as starting the conference season in December and possibly playing mid-week games. Under the round robin, each team would have a home-and-home series with the nine other conference members. Big Ten teams now play 14 conference games each.

Directors and faculty representatives will meet jointly Wednesday and Thursday. A new special advisory committee of 11 former Big Ten black athletes is to meet with the group Thursday.

In another matter, Duke said it would be premature for him to comment on reports that Minnesota basketball player Greg Olson sold complimentary tickets for more than face value during the 1972-73 season.

"We'll look into it," said Duke. "We'll look into it, maybe daily or weekly or monthly."

Bradley to Wesleyan
BLOOMINGTON — Mike Bradley, all-state basketball guard at Central Catholic High School here, announced Monday that he will attend Illinois Wesleyan University.

Bradley becomes the third all-state cager to choose Wesleyan, Bob Spear of Quincy and Jack Sikma of St. Anne having picked Wesleyan earlier.

The 6-foot-1-inch guard made the Chicago Daily News Class all-state team the past two years, being the only junior chosen in 1972. He was also named to the Rockford Register-Star Class A team this year.

He was given special mention on the Champion News-Gazette squad and honorable mention for the Associated Press team. Neither of those teams differentiates between the classifications.

Other colleges Bradley listed before making his choice were Texas, Illinois and Notre Dame.

The spring meetings are being held in conjunction with the 73rd Big Ten track and field meet which will be held at Minnesota's Bierman Field Friday and Saturday afternoons.

Mrs. Court Says She Could Beat Riggs Next Time

LONDON (AP) — Margaret Court, Australian tennis star, said Tuesday she is ready to take on Bobby Riggs again and would beat him next time.

She blamed the "circus-like atmosphere" for her 2-6, 1-6 defeat by the 55-year-old American at Ramona, Calif., last Sunday.

Mrs. Court, 30, said at London's Heathrow Airport: "Bobby is not a great tennis player. I lost because I could not adjust to the carnival atmosphere in which the match was played and I wasn't really mentally fit."

"If I played him again I reckon I would beat him and I would have no hesitation in accepting a return match."

Mrs. Court claimed that seven professional women players out of 10 would beat Riggs, who won the Wimbledon title in 1939 — three years before she was born.

"He messed me around and upset my normal style of play," the Australian said. "It was all a bit sneaky."

Riggs picked up a winner-take-all prize of $10,000 at Ramona. Another woman star, reigning Wimbledon champion Billie Jean King, has since said she is ready to challenge Riggs.

Southeast Edges Wildcats By One Stroke In Golf

PALMYRA — Todd Noe and Dave Tate tied for medalist, but Southeast showed more team balance in edging North-western 160-161 in a golf match at Terry Park, Tuesday afternoon. Northwestern now stands 2-8 on the year, but it was their first home match as Terry Park was just opened.

Northwestern's Noe fired a 35 over the par 33 course to tie with the Spartans' Tate for top honors. Following those two was another Wildcat, Carl Kerstein with a 38.

Northwestern's other two finishers were Tom Killam with a 43, and Jeff Griffith with a 45.

Following Tate for the Springfield club were Doug Brown with a 41, John Nipple with a 42, and Jeff Matson with a 42.

Killebrew's HR Propels Twins To 9-5 Margin

ARLINGTON, Tex. (AP) — Harmon Killebrew's solo homer in the seventh inning broke a 5-5 tie and pitcher Bert Blyleven allowed just one hit over the last seven innings as the Minnesota Twins beat the Texas Rangers 9-5 Tuesday night.

Killebrew's homer climaxed a Twins comeback that started with the Rangers ahead 5-1 after the third inning. It came off loser Bill Gogolewski, 0-1, the Rangers' third pitcher.

Rod Carew accounted for the final three Minnesota runs, blasting a three-run homer in the eighth off Jim Merritt.

In the first, Vic Harris singled, went to third on a single by Toby Harrah and scored on a sacrifice fly. Don Gullett, 4-2, was the winner but got help from from Pedro Borbon.

Perez got Cincinnati's first run of the game of Claude Osteen, 3-3, in the opening inning when his pop fly down the first base line was dropped by second baseman Dave Lopes, allowing Joe Morgan to score from second.

The next two times up, Perez hit home runs, driving in three runs.

Gullett retired 12 of the first 11 batters he faced with only Ron Cey reaching base by a walk. Cey stopped the no-hit bid with a lead-off single in the fifth, and drove home the Dodgers' only run of the game in the sixth with a single.

O'Donnell slammed a pair of home runs, good for four runs batted in, and Don Clark scattered ten hits as the Redlegs, now 1-3 for the year, took a 5-1 margin in the nightcap. Reg Robertson and Bud Edlin each had two hits for the losers.

Robertson had four hits as Critic Feeds took the opener 3-6 despite being out 13-9. Gary Spangenberg, Fred Curtis, O'Donnell, Barney Strausbaugh and Rodney Nicholson each had two hits for the Redlegs.

Santo Has Best Start Of Career

CHICAGO (AP) — Ron Santo always has been an emotional individual and it took a tragedy to teach him baseball isn't everything. As a result, Santo is off to the finest start of his 14-year career with the Chicago Cubs.

Santo reluctantly admits the tragic auto accident last March in which he lost his parents is responsible for his finding himself leading the National League with a .369 average Monday.

"I dedicated the season and my life to them," said Santo. "There's no kidding myself. I've had my problems. I know we should have won the pennant somewhere along the line the last few seasons."

"I remember last Thanksgiving when I sat down and told Mom that I was going to quit in a couple of years," said the 33-year-old star third baseman. "I saw from the look in her eyes that she didn't understand because her whole life was my baseball career."

"When they passed away, I realized baseball was not everything. Yet, I dedicated the season to them. I think of nothing else but baseball and it has given me new life. Now I go up there with confidence and determination."

"I don't care what the fans say or if they boo," continued Santo. "Those things are no longer important. I find there no longer are any pressures on me."

Although Santo hates "to admit it" he seldom has had good starts with the possible exception of 1964 when he batted a career high .313 with 30 home runs and 114 runs batted in "and 13 triples," he adds.

"Nobody believes me but I think I tied for the league lead in triples with Richie Allen that year. I guess I had some speed then," said Santo who doesn't exactly put fear in the enemy with his base running.

"No, I've never led the league in hitting, not even for a day," said Santo. "I doubt if I can ever lead the league in hitting. I've always felt you have to have a lot of speed to do that."

Santo has shunned predicting any pennants since his heeling-clicking days of 1969 when the Cubs blew a 9½ game lead late in the season as the New York Mets came on to win everything.

"We've got a very good club and this is the strongest pitching we've had since I've been here," said Santo. "We've had a good club for six years but we've never had this kind of pitching and pitching is 90 percent of the game."

"In the past we lost too many games after the seventh inning and that isn't happening now. This is a together club. Everybody is pulling for each other. Whitey (Lockman) has done a tremendous job. He makes everyone feel he's a part of the club. He's got a way about him. I know about those piercing blue eyes," added Santo. "But there always seems to be a smile in them."

Cash's Single
Caps Bucs Rally
For 9-8 Verdict

PITTSBURGH (AP) — Dave Cash lined a tie-breaking, bases-loaded single to left in the bottom of the 11th Tuesday night, carrying Pittsburgh to a 9-8 victory over the Montreal Expos.

Bob Robertson opened the 11th with a walk off Joe Gilbert, 0-1, and Gene Alley hit a single.

John Strohmayr relieved Gilbert and walked Dave Giusti, loading the bases. The Expos, gambling on a double play ball, went with a five-man infield and no center fielder. But Cash wrecked the strategy with his single to left, Pittsburgh's 20th hit of the game.

The Pirates rallied for four runs in the eighth inning, tying the score. Alek tripled, pinch hitter Gene Cline singled in a run, Cash singled, then Richie Hebner, Manny Sanguillen and Al Oliver delivered consecutive run-scoring singles.

The Expos had taken an 8-4 lead on a five-run outburst in the sixth. John Boccabella and Bob Bailey singled, Boccabella scored on an infield out and Bailey came home on Bots Day's pinch-double.

The Expos added three runs with the help of a double steal and throwing errors by Milt May and Heberner.

Archibald Leads Voting In NBA All Star Team

NEW YORK (AP) — Guard Nate Archibald of Kansas City-Omaha, whose relatively short stature is belied by his massive scoring output, received the greatest number of votes for the National Basketball Association's 1972-73 All-Star squad.

The 6-foot-1 Archibald, the league's leading scorer with 2,719 points for a 34.0 game average, landed 15,836 points from a panel of sports writers and broadcasters in the NBA's 17 cities, it was announced Monday.

Each city received a full vote, giving 17,000 the maximum.

Sports Agents

Business Managers Exploit Athletes?

By IRA BERKOW
NEA Sports Editor
(First of Three Parts)

NEW YORK — (NEA) — Norman Young, who has served two separate jail sentences and is now being indicted for grand larceny and forgery and is under investigation concerning possible misappropriation of clients' funds by the district attorney's office of Westchester County, New York, is not the only athletes' "business manager" or "agent" in trouble.

The offices of the players' associations for the four major team sports, baseball, football, basketball and hockey, all report a constantly rising number of complaints by athletes concerning their personal agents.

In San Francisco, a business manager has disappeared with an estimated $1 million that several pro football players had given him to make investments for them.

Julius Erving is contending in arbitration of a hallyhood contract mess that Steve Arnold was acting as a double agent, employed by the American Basketball Association while supposedly representing Erving exclusively.

Jim Chones is suing Al Ross, business manager for many athletes including Carl Eller and Spencer Haywood. Chones charges that Ross used Chones' money in Texas real-estate deals to advance himself and not Chones.

One agent allegedly bought land for $60,000 (with his clients' money) and then "sold" the land to him as a deal he couldn't pass up for $100,000.

An example of one of the complaints against Norman Young: Pro football player Sam Holden had signed a contract to pay Young 10 per cent of his total earnings according to National Football League Players' Assn. director Ed Garvey, the contract read that Young would get his cut of Holden's contract before the season started. Holden was cut from the New Orleans Saints and league rules dictated that he not receive any salary. Despite this, Young, who had control of some of Holden's previous investment money, took out his "share" of the more than $20,000 contract that Holden never received a penny of.

The next great sports scandal in this country will involve the swindlers, frauds and egregious incompetencies of disreputable "business managers" and "agents" according to Larry Fleisher, general counsel of the National Basketball Players' Association.

The cases brought into public light, said Fleisher, have been too few and far between to make a resounding impact. Once some of the cases now in court are resolved, other athletes, now too embarrassed at having been bilked, will come forward and relate their stories when they see they are not alone.

Fleisher added that legal action against the "widespread corruption" may come within the next year.

Many agents (they prefer to be called "business managers" or "money managers") are not dishonest in the legal sense, but are schemers and sometimes sheer incompetents, said Alan Eagleson, head of the National Hockey League Players' Association.

"The problem of agents is one of our major concerns," said Eagleson. "Many just don't know what they're doing. For example, they give bad advice on taxes. They may not consider a bonus taxable. A player finds out about the tax when he receives a penalty for not having paid it. And some well-meaning agents make investments, but they make bad ones."

The fee structure of agents is another complaint. Said Dick Moss, counsel for the Major League Players' Association: "I've heard of deals where an agent is to receive 20 to 25 per cent of the player's total income for the whole of his sports career."

Another problem is the "power of attorney" assumed by some agents. This allows them to get a player's check before the player does, and to make whatever investment the agent desires without even consulting the player.

"Very few agents are competent and honest," said Fleisher, who himself represents some 20 basketball players. (Eagleson also handles over 150 hockey players. Garvey of the NFL Association and Moss, though, say such a dual interest is not permitted in their associations.)

"But," said Garvey, "you hate to put all business managers in the same bag. There are some good ones. I don't want to mention any names because it might seem like I'm endorsing them. Some agents have helped make their clients virtual millionaires, set them up for life."

"Some try to set up advisory services for athletes. Some are investment planners and estate planners. Sure, they want to make a dollar but they do not want to rip off the client, either."

ALL YOU GOT TO DO IS ASK Murray Olderman

The real quest in San Francisco baseball is not for a successor to Charley Fox — the media already has him fired if he loses two straight — but for a new top man in the organization to take over for aging, increasingly seclusive Horace Stoneham. It can't be son Pete who sleeps in the pressroom.

Q — Can you tell me how Sandy Koufax can give up that million dollar deal with NBC and settle for Maine? — Greta Kaufman, New York

A — It's just like Sandy said — he was never comfortable as a telecaster. And he is a private person who prefers the life of a handyman at his own digs in East Holton, Maine, to the exposure of a celebrity. A la Marlon Brand, he threatened one snooping reporter with a punch in the snoot for trespassing on his domain.

Q — I'm a helluva shortstop who's been in the army a couple of years and gets out next December. All I want's a chance to play ball. How do I get it? — T-4 Sam Grady, Germany.

A — Wait till the snow melts. Better yet, buy a plane ticket to Florida. Almost all the teams participate in the instructional leagues and will be polite enough to look you over. Each major league club has a player personnel director whom you can contact for a trial. Pick a club you're interested in and write him now. The American League office in Boston or the National League office in San Francisco can provide the names.

Q — Our school would like to have Howard Cosell come here and lecture at a communications seminar. How can I get him?

Q — Anything to the rumors that Oakland has tried to get back Mike Epstein from Texas? If you ask me, they should never have traded him. — Boggie Perino, Stockton, Calif.

A — Maybe they asked Reggie Jackson instead. It never made print, but big Mike and slugging Reggie had a fist brawl last year (won by Mike). That, as much as his publicized plane argument with manager Dick Williams during the World Series, got him shipped to the Rangers. It's unlikely they'll get him back.

RIDES FIVE WINNERS
ARLINGTON HEIGHTS, Ill. (AP) — Tony Rini booted home five winners Tuesday, including Robert Mitchell's Jodi Pete in the featured $6,000 WIND Music Purse at Arlington Park.

Jodi Pete led every step of the way and romped home by five lengths over Bit of Gambit in the six furlong dash. Judge Valor was third before a crowd of 8,389.

The winner was clocked in 1:10 3-5 and paid $6, $2.60 and $2.40. Bit of Gambit returned $2.40 and $2.20 and Judge Valor was $2.80 to show.

Rini's other winners were King Solomon in the opener, Bo's and Ohs in the third, Mr. Executioner in the fourth and Jet's Skipper in the fifth.

him? — Bill Rivers, Stanford, Calif.

A — Bring bag of shekels. Howard's getting heady with his new status as a celebrity and demanding a minimum of $3,000 for appearances. For students, provide dictionary.

Q — Who's got more money. Lamar Hunt or Clint Murchison? — Chris Jones, Orange, Texas.

A — It depends whose oil well came in last. Lamar has a broader base of sports interest than Clint, since in addition to Kansas City Chiefs, he controls tennis, has a piece of pro basketball, owns a soccer team and used to have some baseball action. All Clint has, besides the Dallas Cowboys, is his crew cut. Though he's looking seriously into a big tennis resort enterprise in the Los Angeles area high on Mulholland Drive.

Q — I keep telling guys in the neighborhood that Roberto Clemente first came up with the Brooklyn Dodgers, and they tell me I'm all wet. Who's right? — Neil Mahoney, Pittsburgh, Pa.

A — Come in out of the rain, Neil. Roberto technically did belong to the old Brooklyn Dodgers. They had given the late, great Puerto Rican outfielder a $10,000 bonus and kept him with their Montreal farm club in 1954. After he only hit .257, they neglected to bring him up to the parent club, as required for bonus babes, and the Pirates drafted him that fall for $4,000. It was the best deal that Branch Rickey, then running Pittsburgh, ever made.

Q — Anything to the rumors that Oakland has tried to get back Mike Epstein from Texas? If you ask me, they should never have traded him. — Boggie Perino, Stockton, Calif.

A — Maybe they asked Reggie Jackson instead. It never made print, but big Mike and slugging Reggie had a fist brawl last year (won by Mike). That, as much as his publicized plane argument with manager Dick Williams during the World Series, got him shipped to the Rangers. It's unlikely they'll get him back.

PARTING SHOT:
Don't be surprised if there's a change in Monday night football's Unholy Trio. Their contretemps may be good show biz but a lot of friction and tension has also come out of it — between the principals.

Nursing Center Landscaping
Green and growing might well describe the new look at the Scott County Nursing Center.

Last Saturday six ambitious Winchester Kiwanians were on the scene, with shovels in hand, to plant the trees and shrubs that had been donated to the nursing center by interested individuals and organizations. A total of 53 shrubs, flowering trees, evergreens, and shade trees were planted.

This was the first step in completing the landscape plan that was designed for the Scott County Nursing Center by W. R. Nelson, Jr., University of Illinois Extension Landscape Architect, and George Myers, Scott County Extension Adviser and Specialist Horticulture Adviser.

According to the nursing center administrator, Mrs. Lola Hickey, Saturday's planting completed about one-half of the total landscape plan. Additional plants have been purchased but will not be available until this fall. There are still a large number of trees and shrubs to be purchased and donations are still welcome. A second planting day will be held this fall, hopefully to complete the project.

Mrs. Hickey commented about Saturday's work, "I think it was wonderful that the local Kiwanians volunteered their time to help with the landscape project. Although the landscaping is not completed, the plants that have been planted have certainly changed the appearance of the nursing center. This will help make the Scott County Nursing Center the most beautiful home in this part of the State."

Local Kiwanians who volunteered their services for Saturday's landscape work were: Elmer Fedder, Everett Patterson, George Lindsey, Richard Brown, Rev. Maner Aden and George Myers. Herschel Hickey, Jacksonville, also helped with the work. Mrs. Hickey and Mrs. Myers were also on hand to supervise the project.

Nursing Center News
Two lovely items, a white shawl and an afghan, have been donated to the center. Thanks are extended to Mrs. Madeline Carmean for making the crocheted afghan and to the anonymous donor of the shawl. These items will be given away July 4th and tickets of 50 cents each or three for $1 can be purchased at the nursing center. Proceeds from these donations will assist our landscaping plan and help towards a choral organ and other musical needs.

Two "Happy Birthday" wishes go to Mame Shull and Margaret Broersma. Mame's family joined her on Sunday for cake and ice cream.

Mrs. Ralph Peck of the First Baptist church is giving her time this month to teach the Sunday school class.

The Alsey Baptist church was in charge of the Thursday church service. The Rev. Ralph Williams conducted the service with special music from Mrs. Robert Fryman and Mrs. Kenneth Garrett accompanied by Miss Wilba Priest. The many church members attending were very much appreciated.

A Winchester man, Fred Pile, entered the center as a resident this week. One of his daughters, Eileen Hoots, is part of the staff at the center.

The last and latest scoop is that the nursing center has lost its scoop. Wayne thinks it might have been borrowed, but "who or who?"

Personals
Saturday evening visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Claude Day were the Rev. and Mrs. Gerald Day, Kevin and Ken of Winchester; Mr. and Mrs. Gail Day and family of White Hall; Mrs. Helen Gregory and Miss Jessie Myers of Winchester.

Mother's Day guests of Mrs. Clarence Cox were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cox; Mr. and Mrs. Warren Phillips and Joyce of Barry; Mr. and Mrs. Don Cox and family and Mr. and Mrs. James Cox and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Evans entertained Mr. and Mrs. Herb

Ehlert and family; Mrs. Janiece Zundell and sons; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gregory and son; and Victor Evans to dinner Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herb Ehlert and family visited Mr. and Mrs. Earl Albers of Bluffs Sunday evening.

Projects Approved
A long list of projects including site work involving bituminous concrete, sealing, oiling and chipping of roadways, parking areas and play areas at schools throughout the district received approval.

Estimated cost of the projects involved is about $21,000 and does not include re-sealing of blacktop area at Eisenhower and Armstrong schools which will be handled by school personnel during the summer.

The work includes a blacktop play area and chips of the present parking and roadway at North Jacksonville school. The blacktop area has been sought by North Jacksonville officials and parents for the past eight years but put off because of lack of funds.

South Jacksonville school will have an old playground surface removed and graded plus a play area constructed.

The bus garage will have oil and chips applied to the parking area, as will Lincoln, Jefferson, The Red Farm and South Jacksonville.

Lafayette school will have one driveway removed and a new one installed. Harry Lee Hall, Jr., from the PTA, said a playground area would be developed to make better use of existing space on the school site.

Hall said the playground and parking would be separated and that instead of mud, the playground fixtures would be surrounded by wood chips in the development of a "recycled" play area.

Low bidder for most of the work was Strata, Inc., of Springfield.

Morris and Cecil Franzen expressed the thought that inadequate maintenance was available to the high school and David Prince buildings. Franzen said he had been asked whether the board was planning to let the high school "run down" to force building of a new complex. School administrative officials said there was no plans for such a program and that, in contrast, much had been spent on improvements at the high school during the past few years.

Bids were also awarded for custodial supplies and equipment from ten firms. Most of the discussion centered around the cost of purchasing waste baskets at a cost of $7.79 for a 30-inch model as opposed to two dollars for an 18-inch model.

The cafeteria report for April showed that the operation was $112 into the black ink for the month, compared with a $483 loss for the same period a year ago.

Secretary Margaret M. Johnson of North Jacksonville school, plus custodial personnel Ernie Mattee and Willard Tranter of the high school and Margaret Norvell of Jefferson school will retire at the end of the school year.

The board approved continuation of the work experience and career exploration program for 1973-74. This program provides work experience for students at the junior high school level.

No Mini Bikes
The board banned the recreational use of motor vehicles on school sites. This includes riding of mini bikes on school property at anytime.

Insurance Industry Profits Scrutinized

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) —

The insurance industry would be required to pass on to the consumer any profits realized through implementation of no-fault automobile insurance under an amendment approved Tuesday in the Illinois Senate.

Sen. Cecil A. Partee, D-Chicago, offered the amendment to the no-fault auto insurance bill sponsored by William C. Harris, R-Pontiac.

Harris then moved the bill to passage stage, but said he would bring it back if the lawmakers wanted to change it further.

Under the Partee amendment, the Illinois director of insurance would collect statistics on insurance industry profits accruing from any reductions in costs made possible through no-fault. The insurance director would instruct the industry in passing those profits on to the consumer.

The Harris bill requires each vehicle to be covered by the insurance, which will pay benefits to motorists involved in an accident regardless of fault.

Benefits of up to $10,000 per person would be established for medical and work losses.

However, the bill gives unlimited right to sue for general damages only in case of death or serious injury, and permits suits for permanent disability only in excess of 60 days.

Sen. Harris Fawell, R-Naper, sponsored a pending Illinois State Bar Association no-fault bill providing less than the industry bill for medical benefits but putting no limits on suits for pain and suffering. He says he favors Partee's amendment but hoped later to make stronger at the industry's expense.

Fawell said that "after mandating that people have to have the insurance and mandating the people have to pay for it, we should make very sure the insurance industry is made to toe the line. The department should set the premiums, not the insurance company."

"The amendment should say that the director of insurance is going to set these premiums, completely, not just set the ground rules on how the company is going to set premiums, if this bill is ever going to pass," Fawell warned.

Harris' bill also repeals the former Illinois no-fault insurance bill which the State Supreme Court found unconstitutional.

Niekro 5-Hitter Nets 4-1 Margin Over Houston

HOUSTON (AP) — Knuck-leballer Phil Niekro pitched a five-hitter and Dusty Baker hit a three-run homer Tuesday night as the Atlanta Braves trimmed the Houston Astros 4-1.

Baker's homer off losing pitcher Don Wilson, 3-4, came in the sixth and followed a walk and stolen base by Darrell Evans and a walk to Hank Aaron.

The Braves scored in the ninth when, with one out, Baker singled and Mike Lum walked. Dave Johnson then grounded into what appeared to be an inning-ending double play, but umpire Bruce Froemming called Lum safe at second and Baker scored a run.

Niekro, 2-1, was making his first start of the season. He lost his shutout in the seventh inning when the Astros scored on singles by Cesar Cedeño, Lee May and Doug Rader.

Gold

(Continued From Page One) speculators cashed in dollars and U.S. securities to buy more gold and get on the bandwagon. This pushed dollar exchange rates down and encouraged more gold buying. The process depressed the dollar to record lows in Paris and Frankfurt.

But the dollar began to recover slightly on foreign exchange markets late in the day, and finished above its worst levels in most centers.

This, plus the late recovery of stock prices in New York, prompted dealers here to suggest that some of the pressure against the dollar was receding.

In London, the pound climbed as high as $2.58, its peak for 11 months, but closed back at $2.5650, a gain of 2½ cents for the day.

"The pound is very much overvalued at this level and the dollar too low," said Bruce Smith, foreign exchange manager at the Midland bank. The market, he added, has been "totally irrational and self-feeding" the past two days.

Other market sources agreed there had been an overreaction to the gold price passing through the psychologically important $100 an ounce barrier Monday.

A spokesman for a London gold dealer said the market "defies analysis. The speculators have taken over."

Although there was no general agreement whether or when the activity of the past two days would cool off, the cause of the flurry seemed fairly well established in the minds of the experts.

Most sources blamed it largely on uncertainty over President Nixon's ability to carry through trade, economic and monetary measures amid the Watergate scandal.

Skylab

The heat buildup, which is turning the space station into an orbiting sauna, is of more concern, an official said, than the failure of two power-producing solar panels.

"The vehicle is hot," said Neil Hutchinson, a flight controller in Mission Control. "We've got to figure out some way to cool it off. It's a problem of primary concern."

He said there also are difficulties with a computer which is seeing problems where none exist and activating stabilizing gyros when they are unneeded.

Arab

The flow of Arab oil has been seriously interrupted only twice — during brief periods of war in 1956 and 1967.

Over the weekend, President Moammar Khadafi of Libya said: "No doubt the day will come when oil will be used as a weapon by the Arabs in the Middle East."

But he gave no timetable for nationalization and indicated Libya would not act until other governments agreed to do likewise.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — How does a nation get itself into an inflationary predicament such as now afflicts the United States and, in fact, almost all the industrial nations of the world?

Fifty years ago, the answer might have been: "Through ignorance." Some economists maintain that the answer still applies. To a great extent, economics remains a science of testing theories against practicality.

Some critics blame politics for violating economic common sense. Faced with an election, an administration might choose inflation rather than unemployment — the two react to each other — as the more acceptable.

But more pertinent today is that most industrial nations are committed by national policy to fighting with inflation, to playing a high-risk game in which they sometimes miscalculate the odds.

The commitment, which in the United States is embodied in the Employment Act of 1946, is to utilize all the resources of the nation to their maximum effectiveness to bring the greatest good to the greatest number.

In doing this, a nation generally is pushing against the limit of its capabilities, a nebulous area beyond which the economic machine produces a lot of steam — inflation — as demand exceeds production. It is testing unknown waters and doing so with a steering mechanism, fiscal and monetary policy, that responds months after the levers are pulled.

Fiscal policy relates to the federal budget and deficits; monetary policy, to interest rates and loans and the amount of money made available through the Federal Reserve.

There are some economists who insist that business and consumer spending react almost mechanically to the application or withholding of these stimuli, not because they are trained mice but because they can't spend without money.

But a growing school of behavioral psychologists insists that the consumer, who now is the biggest single factor in the economy, bigger than either government or business, doesn't act like an automaton.

They say the consumer has considerably more choice than ever before. He has savings and sometimes lines of credit to fall back on when he is pinched by restrictive policies. He actually can defy policy for awhile.

Moreover, much of his spending today is for luxuries rather than necessities, items on which he can exercise choice: To buy or not, to postpone, to buy in advance of need.

Many consumers today are said to be buying well in advance of need, or at least to have decided to buy now rather than wait. Why? Because of a widespread feeling that prices will continue to rise.

Making it possible for them to do so are bigger incomes, savings and credit cards. Billions of dollars in tax refunds are helping. So is the fact that, as incomes rise, more workers are completing their annual Social Security contributions earlier than before and so have a "raise" for the rest of the year. Didn't the administration foresee all this? Not all of it.

Albert Cox, chief economist of Lionel Edie & Co., management consultants, and a former Nixon administration economist comments:

"... The most likely explanation is that the President's advisers, along with most private economists, simply counted too heavily on slack in the economy that really wasn't there."

They simply misread the future and thought they could encourage further expansion, Cox said. On top of this came the dollar devaluation, which makes imports costlier. And the bad planting weather hurt, too.

When you're seeking the maximum from the economy, there is always the danger of overdoing it, especially when the fiscal and monetary regulators must anticipate events many months in advance.

But even if the policy is correct, there is that growing feeling that an increasingly powerful consumer can upset it or mute its effects or, for a short time, actually defy it.

Management Tools Used To Up Production, Morale

By LEROY POPE
UPI Business Writer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lou Ann Sanderson works in the underwriting department of a large midwestern insurance company.

For some years, she and 140 other girls assigned columns of figures to thousands of accounts with only the vaguest notion of what they meant. Morale and production both were low.

Then the insurance company decided to use a management tool called job enrichment. Lou Ann was assigned 100 clients and told to keep all the records of their accounts. At once she became a lot more interested and began producing better.

Frederick Mann, a high salaried vice president of an Ohio consumer products manufacturer, felt his efficiency was affected because taxes were taking too big a bite out of his pay. His company adopted a management tool called "Computer Approach to Compensation," sometimes called "Cafeteria Approach."

This enabled Mann to defer 20 per cent of his income for 15 years, to have part of his annual bonus paid in stock and to make an extra compensation to the pension plan. He felt this improved his confidence and attitude and made him a better executive.

These are just a few of the somewhat surprising items turned up in a detailed study of how 147 corporations used new management tools recently devised by companies, consultants and university business schools.

The study was made by four consulting firms, Rath & Strong, Inc., of Boston, Lawrence Leiter & Co. of Kansas City, Theo. Berry & Associates of Los Angeles, and Lifson, Wilson, Ferguson & Winick, Inc., of Dallas.

The results were not all positive. None of the 13 new management techniques studied proved universally successful or popular. Even electronic data processing, the most widely used, was termed "unsatisfactory" by 12 per cent of the companies.

Job enrichment and "cafeteria" executive compensation, which do so well at Lou Ann Sanderson's and Frederick Mann's firms, were found unsatisfactory by 16 and 20 per cent of those answering respectively. The modern management tool that frustrated the most companies and employees was "incentive pay."

is called Indirect Work Measurement. This means attempting to fix a mathematical standard for the cost and staffing levels of non-production employees. Most firms found this difficult or impossible, saying you just have to go by old-fashioned, somewhat subjective personal judgment.

Another one which most companies found difficult to deal with but which is gaining in importance, according to the survey, is social accounting. This means that a company tries to figure how important to its growth and profitability are the decisions it must make on such matters as race relations, ecology and the company's image in local community affairs.

SOYBEANS, GRAINS ADVANCE SHARPLY

CHICAGO (AP) — A strong demand for commodity futures coupled with a scarcity of sellers lifted prices sharply on the Chicago Board of Trade Tuesday.

Old crop soybeans advanced the limit of 20 cents a bushel and meal prices rose the limit of $10 a ton. Soybean oil was up some 60 points.

The expiring May options in the soybean complex have no trade limitations and beans advanced 59 cents a bushel while meal rose $24 a ton with oil up 50 points or 1/2 cent a pound.

A major factor in the buying was the strong demand for hard commodities abroad. This included another onslaught against the American dollar.

Some buying here also was attributed to a trade feeling that the longer farms remain covered by swollen streams and rain so much higher will grains be later this year.

A shortage of good quality corn at the cash level was a big factor in the buying of May futures, which again rose the limit of 8 cents. Other options were very strong and demand high.

Wheat futures rose 8 cents before some profit-taking set in on the local level, while oats rose 4 cents under heavy demand.

Iced broilers gained 1/2 cent a pound in light trade. After about an hour, soybeans were 13 1/2 to 20 cents a bushel higher; wheat was 6 to 6 1/2 higher, May 2.51; corn was 1/2 to 3/4 higher, May 1.96 1/2 and oats were 1 1/2 to 4 higher, May 94 cents.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market bounced back Tuesday from a four-day selling streak as investors reacted when the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials pushed down through the 900 barrier in early trading.

The Dow, which was down 11 points in early trading, finished up 7.75 at 917.44. It was the first time the Dow had fallen below the 900 mark since Feb. 27, 1972.

The blue-chip indicator had fallen more than 46 points in the four prior sessions, including an 18-point drop Monday, the steepest one-day drop in almost three years.

"There was such a sharp sell-off that some kind of comeback could be expected," said Ralph Acampora of Harris, Upham & Co. "The selloff was precipitated by the sharp increase in the price of gold, the fact that they turned off the gas in the Mideast, and behind the whole thing is that Watergate fiasco. These three crises precipitated the sharp selloff."

Gold hit record highs in Europe, and the dollar declined against some European currencies to its lowest levels since World War II.

Analysts said Libya's announcement that it would stop pumping oil for 24 hours to protest Western aid to Israel would not affect the market in the long run, although some of the international oils closed lower.

Declining issues on the New York Stock Exchange led advancing issues 806 to 629 in the 1,776 issues changing hands.

The broad-based NYSE index of some 1,500 common shares finished up 0.31 at 56.51. Trading was active, and volume totaled 18.53 million shares.

Kaufman & Brad was the most-active issue on the Big Board, closing down 5 1/4 at 21. Trading had been delayed since Friday because of an influx of sell orders.

The company said several former employees had "altered or incorrectly stated" information on mortgage applications submitted by prospective homebuyers. American Telephone was second most-active, up 1/4 at 53 1/2, followed by Federal National Manufacturing Association, off 1/4 at 14 1/4.

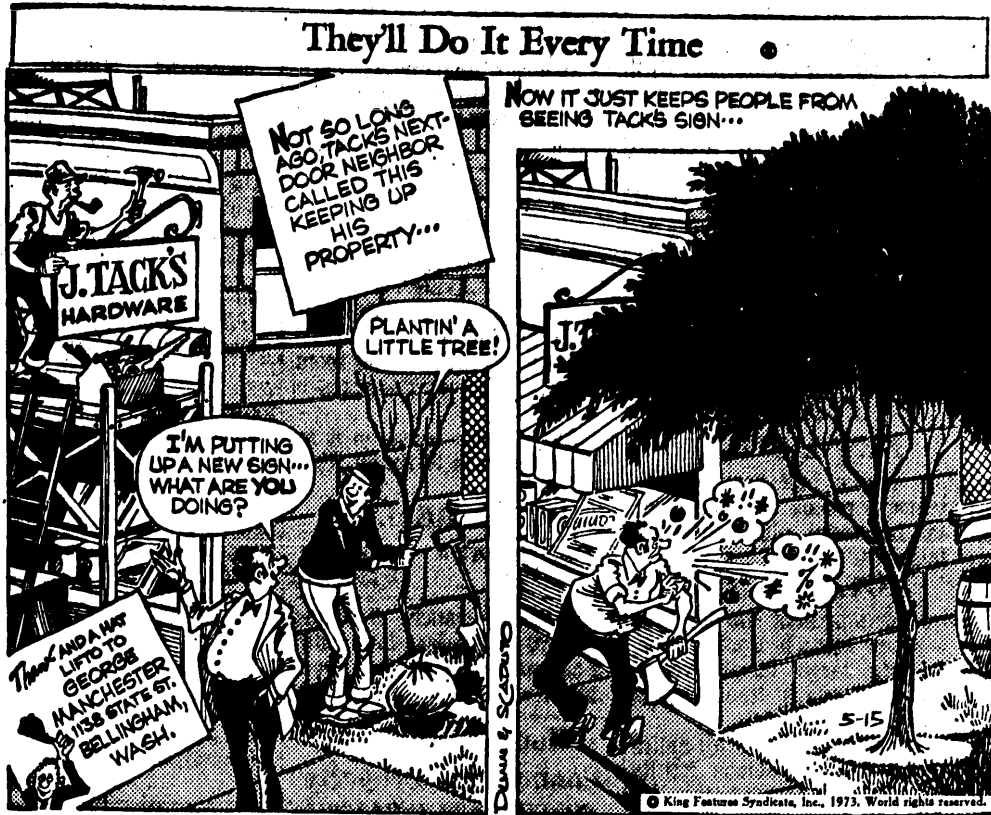

On the American Stock Exchange, declines led advances 584 to 287. The price change index closed down .07 at 23.24.

By POLLY CRAMER bugs' eggs and bugs, too, in Polly's Problem several of my tightly closed DEAR POLLY—There were spice boxes. I discarded the infected spices but would like to know if there is anything I can do to prevent those little pests from taking over again? Often we are at a complete loss over what to buy a friend for a gift. My mother once told me always to keep track of any hobbies or special interests of friends and I find this to be invaluable information when gift buying. A kit would be nice for the woman who likes to embroider or a length of fabric for the one who likes to sew. Everybody has some sort of hobby or collection. It may be gardening, cooking, etc., so with a little thought it is very easy to please. I have used this method for years and always received happy smiles of appreciation. I recently received such a hobby gift in the form of a subscription to a decorating and crafts magazine and was overjoyed.—EDITH

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with the poultry producers who put the heart, liver, neck, etc., inside the frozen bird, and then we housewives cannot get them out for cooking to make dressing. They would thaw so much faster if put in a bag that was attached to the outside of the bird. I have written to the national association of poultry producers and it might help if some more of the girls wrote, too.—MRS. M.K.

DEAR POLLY—Many years ago when they first started to build high-rise apartments along the Lake Shore in Chicago I strolled into the garden area behind the one where we lived and saw dozens of beautiful Easter lilies in bloom. The maintenance man told me that he planted all the potted plants the tenants threw out, cut them off about three inches above the soil, kept them watered and the results were beautiful in the late summer. I have had the same luck doing this since moving to California. Do tell Mrs. I.A.M. that the plants will continue to come up and bloom year after year much the same as other bulbs.—GLORIA

DEAR POLLY—Similar answers came from readers all over the country. Do not think such replanting is confined to California and such climates.—POLLY

District Borrows To Meet Payroll; Approve Projects

Members of the Board of Education of School District 117 Tuesday evening voted to authorize issuance of tax anticipation warrants up to $250,000 for the education fund in order to cover May obligations and payroll.

The warrants will be sold to local financial institutions providing the most favorable interest rate. They will be repaid as soon as the first tax money arrives.

Best estimates are that tax bills will be sent to taxpayers from the treasurer's office this week and the first money from taxes will be distributed by the last week in May.

The present financial picture shows a budget deficit of about $370,000 plus use of about $400,000 in early tax payments, or approximately $770,000 over-spent. Dr. Clifford Crone, superintendent of District 117, told the board that later information shows that the amount will be something like $600,000. He said the education fund was spending about $143,000 more than revenue per year.

Forecasts for increased state aid are contingent on action in the General Assembly and must await final legislative action.

Salary Proposal
Russell Morris reported on negotiations between the Jacksonville Education Association and the board concerning economic and other items. Morris said it was his personal opinion that the 1972-73 salary schedule was adequate for the next year, although JEA had presented a proposal estimated to cost an additional 6 to 7 per cent, plus the regular increment on the present salary schedule of about $50,000.

Morris said the present schedule calls for salaries for teachers from $7,900 to $14,390 and that approximately half of the present teachers would receive raises under the present plan. He cited the long list of fringe benefits available and concluded that because of the present financial condition of the district, it would be well to continue with the present salary schedule... with no raises other than those indicated.

District 117 has a slightly higher schedule for professional personnel than Four Rivers Special Education District.

Morris said there was no agreement, as yet, but said later in the meeting that the talks could be completed before the next board meeting. Little comment was made for the public portion of the meeting, but an executive session was scheduled following the regular session.

Teachers Retire
The board accepted the resignations of five teachers, two of whom are longtime faculty members at the high school. Miss Helen Richards whose teaching experience spans 38 years will retire at the end of the school year. Miss Ann Russell Jones will also retire after 32 years of teaching, 25 at JHS. Both veteran teachers are in the English department and the resignations due to retirement of both were accepted with regret. The board also made special mention for appreciation and recognition for both teachers.

Hiring of a school social worker was vacated. The position was left vacant during the current school year because of lack of a suitable person to fill the job. Morris moved to table the hiring of the person, saying it should await completion of negotiations on teacher salaries. (Turn To Page Twelve) (See "District")

Expect Landfill Operator To Terminate His Contract

By OLIVER WIEST

Landfill operator James R. Hutton is expected to terminate his contract with the city today. Hutton said last night he will sign an agreement calling his five-year contract to provide a refuse disposal site for Jacksonville and South Jacksonville.

Hutton said Mayor Milton L. Hocking delivered an ultimatum in a meeting yesterday in the mayor's office — relinquish the contract or have it terminated by the city council.

The contract provides that the city may terminate the agreement after giving 60 days notice in the event the contractor fails to carry out its provisions.

No Bond
Hutton failed to comply with at least one stipulation in the contract which requires him to furnish a performance bond equal to one fifth of his $60,000 per year bid, renewable annually.

There is no record in the city clerk's office of the bond ever having been furnished. However, a letter on file from the McConathy Agency in Roodhouse certifying that Hutton had met the liability insurance requirements of the contract noted that a $65,000 performance bond would be furnished when Hutton signed the contract. That letter was dated Dec. 3, 1970, about a month before the contract became effective.

The new operator will probably be Roger W. Gwaltney of Springfield, who until recently was employed by Hutton. Gwaltney said he went to work for Hutton with the understanding that he would be put in charge of the local operation after a 60-day trial period. That plan soured. Hutton claims Gwaltney didn't do the job; Gwaltney says he left Hutton's employ because he wasn't paid according to their agreement.

Council Action
The city council would have to approve the dissolution of the contract with Hutton. The council could then award a similar contract to Gwaltney. The contract would not have to be submitted for competitive bids if the council authorized the action by a two-thirds vote. Mayor Hocking acknowledged his meeting with Hocking yesterday — which was also attended by Gwaltney, Ald. Carl Bourn and recorded by City Clerk Pauline Newport — but said he knew nothing of the matter beyond what was said on the council floor Monday night.

At that meeting Hocking said he refused at the landfill hadn't been properly covered in six weeks and that the Environmental Protection Agency might shut down the operation. The council later tabled a motion to terminate Hutton's contract.

Complaints
Hutton's departure from the landfill business would come after numerous complaints from both the public and the local trash haulers in the last year. Earlier this year, Hutton was fined $1,500 by the Pollution Control Board for over 50 violations of state landfill regulations.

Before that the city's refuse haulers asked the council to intervene on their behalf and complained they were unable to work satisfactorily with Hutton. Their complaints centered around what they called inadequate roads on the site, damage to their equipment from trash protruding from filled areas, and disputes over rates.

One of the haulers, Joe Buster, said he would welcome Gwaltney as the landfill operator. He described him as "conscientious" and noted that the haulers had volunteered their labor to help Gwaltney put the landfill in proper condition.

Hutton Bitter
Hutton appeared bitter as he discussed the situation. He blamed the heavy rainfall this spring as the prime factor in his failure to cover the refuse properly. Hutton also cited the ice storm last winter which resulted in 15 acres of brush piled on the site which he wasn't allowed to burn and was unable to bury.

"I don't think I got a fair shake," he said, adding the city had given him "no cooperation." Hutton admitted he had been hurt financially on the deal adding, "No one can run a landfill cheaper than I can." Hutton predicted that, should Gwaltney get the contract, "In a year's time he'll be out of business too."

Neighboring Towns
Besides Jacksonville and South Jacksonville, the communities of Murrayville, Woodson, Chapin and Concord could be affected by the changeover. Hutton holds contracts with those municipalities for refuse disposal.

Gwaltney said he would be willing to deal with the outlying towns on the same terms Hutton had and the transition might be made without disruption in service to them. However, Ald. Carl Bourn said the terms of those agreements aren't known to the city officials and a troublesome situation could develop.

Dispute
Bourn said another matter to be resolved is the acquisition of an air curtain destructor by Hutton. The council voted to pay Hutton $6,000 in 12 installments for the purchase of the device — an efficient incinerator which would allow the contractor to burn the acres of brush at the site.

Bourn said at Monday's council meeting, based on hearsay, that Hutton paid only $500 for the machine. Hutton claims he

Junior College District Measure Passes House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The Illinois House passed a measure Tuesday which would include all parts of the state in junior college districts.

The measure, sent to the Senate on a 92-53 vote by one lawmaker voting present, is intended to spread the burden of financing junior colleges among all residents of Illinois.

Rep. Paul Stone, D-Sullivan, sponsored the bill which would repeal a section of the Junior College Act allowing voters in unannexed territory to vote on whether to join a junior college district.

"There are some taxpayers who thought enough of their children to create a junior college district," Stone said, "but these same people have no choice when they are asked to accept the children of people living outside the district into their junior colleges."

Stone argued that under the bill, the cost of maintaining the junior colleges would be split evenly among those who benefit from it.

Several lawmakers opposed the measure, however, arguing that repeal of the referendum provision would mean people who are now not in junior college districts would be taxed without saying whether they wanted to be included in a district or not.

The bill will effect rural and sparsely populated parts of the state.

In the Senate, several minor bills were passed including one which gives mayors the power to remove chiefs of police from office.

Sponsored by Sen. Howard Mohr, R-Park Forest, the bill passed 38-1 and was sent to the Senate.

The Senate passed 46-2 an appropriation of $12,500 for the Joliet-Marquette Bicentennial, which commemorates the trip of the explorers down the Mississippi River.

House Panel Passes Tax Relief Proposal

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — A bill to authorize substitution of $220 million in state income tax dollars next year for local real estate taxes in school districts with high tax rates passed the Illinois House Revenue Committee Tuesday 17-0.

"Property tax relief is high on everyone's list of priorities," Rep. Charles W. Clabaugh, R-Champaign, the chief sponsor, testified. He noted that 60 per cent of property taxes finance schools.

His bill would reduce tax rates automatically for any unit district with a total rate exceeding 2.28 per cent and any dual district with a total rate exceeding 1.31 per cent. The percentages apply against each $100 of assessed property valuation.

The formula calls for a reduction, in each case, of half the amount of the rate in excess of the 2.28 per cent and the 1.31 per cent figures.
